

Lighting Fires

The Fire and Emergency Services Act 1990 is the principal legislation that deals with lighting fires in the open in Queensland.

The Fire and Emergency Services Act 1990 makes it illegal to light a fire without a 'Permit to Light Fire' issued by a fire warden.

Obtaining a Permit to Light Fire

Visit the Queensland Fire and Emergency Services (QFES) website to obtain a permit

Control Burn on Council Land

Where a land owner is making an application to QFES for a controlled burn on Council land, they will need to obtain permission from Council's Fire Management Officer on 1300 308 461 to support their application.

Fires that do not Require a Permit

Fires exempt from requiring a Permit:

- Fires that are less than 2 metres in any direction. Note: These fires are not exempt during a declared Fire Danger Period and at those times a permit must be obtained from a fire warden.
- Fires lit outdoors in a properly prepared fireplace for the purpose of cooking (e.g. BBQ and camp fires). In this instance it is the responsibility of the person lighting or maintaining the fire to ensure adequate precautions are taken to prevent the spread of fire.
- Certain fires used by primary producers and for industrial purposes.

Council Local Law & Prohibited Fires

Council is responsible for regulating fires that are smaller than 2m x 2m.

COUNCIL DOES NOT ISSUE PERMITS TO LIGHT FIRES.
Council's Local Law No 3 prohibits the lighting of fires in many circumstances.

If you are caught lighting Fires

Council Officers may issue fines to the person responsible for lighting the fire or alternatively to the property owner.

You MUST NOT light a fire (less than 2m x 2m) if it is:

- Within 100m of residence;
- Unless it is directly related to cooking or heating and
- All measures have been taken to control & minimise smoke creation.
- Grass cuttings, leaves, green waste and any other household waste are not suitable fuel for burning.
